Do you Need Buildings?

If you do and put off building because lumber is high, are you not making a mistake?

There is not any prospect at present of lumber prices going down much for a number of years, and the comfort you and your family will get out of a good house will more than repay any extra cost. If it is a barn or machine shed you need your live stock and the life of your machinery will more than repay any extra cost.

Our prices, however, are not high, our price list mailed to you on request, will prove that the quality is of the best and is thoroughly air dried.

Local and General

Mr. C. Marston proceeded to Vancouver on Wednesday, to join his mother, after spending a few days in this locality amongst friends.

Quite a number visited Calgary during last week to take in the much talked of and advertised show Chu Chin Chow, from the point of view of several who were fortunate enough to see it in London, the show in Calgary was not worth the railway fare.

D. P. Hays,
Carstairs.

Mr. G. T. Jones and family arrived back on Saturday last, Mrs. Jones and son spending a few days with friends in Calgary making Crossfield on Tuesday. It is exactly 12 months to the day since Mr. and Mrs. Jones left for the Old Country. Both look in A. 1. condition and report having had a good holiday. We take this opportunity of welcoming Mr. and Mrs. Jones back amongst old friends.

Don't forget the meeting in the Fire Hall on Friday evening, Nov. 12th, for the purpose of discussing further on the risk proposition.

We notice Mr. R. Reid left town on Wednesday for Langley Prairie, B. C. where he has recently made his home, having purchased five acres of choice land with the necessary buildings complete. Dick evidently had a presentiment of this cold snap.

An Armistice Day Appeal

In a few days people the world over will celebrate the second anniversary of the signing of the Armistice, that great event which signalled the final triumph of the cause of freedom over the powers of a military autocracy bent upon world domination and a denial of those great principles for which liberty loving people have struggled and died throughout the long centuries of the past.

Armistice Day is one which should never be forgotten, nor its significance to the whole human race ignored. It should be indelibly written upon the hearts of men and women everywhere, and should be imperishably stamped into the minds of the children now and in generations to come. More than this, each recurring anniversary of the Armistice may well be marked by some act of a notable character by the people in each of the countries allied in the war; some act in the nature of a freewill offering, a tangible and practical expression of thanks for the victory achieved, an annually recurring day upon which some little sacrifice will be made by the many in all nations for the benefit of those whose misfortunes and sufferings call loudly for human sympathy and practical assistance.

So far as Canada is concerned, the Red Cross proposes some such national observance of Armistice Day this year, and it is fitting that the world's greatest and most widely known humanitarian organization should thus lead the way. Among all voluntary organizations of an international character, the Red Cross has been officially recognized by the League of Nations as a proper body to exercise functions and discharge important administrative duties of an international character, and it has been appealed to by the Council of the League of Nations to undertake as its first great work the checking of the terrible epidemic of disease now sweeping over a large portion of Europe, and relieve the indescribable suffering and distress which accompanies and follows that epidemic. Hundreds of thousands of people are stricken and dying of typhus, tuberculosis and hunger, while positively millions of children, thousands upon thousands of whom are orphans, lack food, clothing, shelter and care and are dying in appalling numbers.

To meet this awful need, and if possible prevent the spread of typhus throughout the world, the League of Red Cross Societies, which now includes thirty different countries, is sending doctors, nurses, medicines, food and other necessities into the stricken countries. In order that the British Empire, always foremost in works of civilization and humanity all over the globe, may discharge its full duty in the present great emergency, a British Empire War Relief Fund has been inaugurated under the patronage of H.M. the King, and with the support of all political parties and humanitarian organizations. This fund is to be administered by the British Red Cross Society in co-operation with the League of Red Cross Societies.

The people of the Empire are asked to contribute $10,000,000 to this fund, and of this amount $500,000 has been indicated as the amount which Canada ought to supply. The Canadian Red Cross has assumed the task of raising this half million dollars, and Armistice Week has been designated as the period during which an appeal will be made to the Canadian people to make contributions which, in the aggregate, will total that amount.

The efforts of the Canadian Red Cross during and since the war have very properly been largely confined to work for our own soldiers and sailors, and in the direction of promoting health, preventing disease and relieving distress and suffering at home. Now, in the face of untold horrors and suffering, a world appeal comes through the Red Cross to the Canadian people. It is an appeal to which the Red Cross organization could not turn a deaf ear. It is a call to service which cannot be resisted and must not be denied. The spirit of the Red Cross is not narrow nor selfish; the whole world is its field and all peoples of every clime and color have a claim upon its sympathy and support.

In Western Canada the appeal on behalf of the British Empire War Relief Fund will be made to the people through local branches of the Red Cross and in the newspapers. All contributions will be sent to Red Cross headquarters in the respective Provincial Divisions, and then forwarded through the head office for Canada to the British Red Cross.

As was the case on all occasions in the past, it is now hoped and expected that the warm-hearted, open-handed generosity of the people of the West will result in a prompt response to the appeal on behalf of the disease-stricken and starving men, women and, more especially, children of Europe.

Lesson of the Leaves.

We should learn a lesson from the leaves which put on their gayest, brightest dresses before they depart. They make the landscape one gorgeous mass of color; there is no sadness in them. We know their future; how they will help in beautifying and enriching the earth in some other form; and ab with us there is the knowledge that when our autumn has passed we shall in some form serve the purpose of a wise Creator—Kingston Standard.

Care of Farm Machinery

Needed Repairs Should Be Made When Harvest Is Over.

The attention that is given farm machinery this fall will determine its condition when it must be used in the spring. How many times have we found when we take the implement or machinery out of the shed in the spring that some repairs which was needed has not been attended to? And then—delay, when delay is costly, in the spring.

When the harvest is over, machinery should be collected and gone over for needed repairs. By cleaning, oiling and painting in the fall, rust and costly deterioration will be prevented during the winter, and the machines will be ready for use in the spring.

BEWARE OF DECEPTION

Statistics show that when egg albumen is used as a constituent of baking powder, the amount so used is too small (usually 15/100 of 1%) to affect the quality or effectiveness of the baking powder containing it, and when so used, is plainly for the purpose of fraud. Intelligent buyers will not permit themselves to be deceived by the water glass test.

BABY'S OWN TABLETS ALWAYS IN THE HOUSE

Once a mother has used Baby's Own Tablets for her little ones she always keeps a supply on hand, for the first trial convinces her there is nothing to equal them in keeping children well. The Tablets are a mild but thorough laxative which regulate the bowels and sweeten the stomach, thus driving out constipation and indigestion, colds and simple fevers, and making breathing easier. Concerning them, Mrs. Caluste Pelletier, St. Dunas, Que., writes: "I have used Baby's Own Tablets for the past ten years and am never without them in the house. They have always given me the greatest satisfaction and I can gladly recommend them to all mothers of little ones." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or direct by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

Hasten The Day.

A speeding up of production all round will hasten the advent of the glad day when a dollar will buy a dollar's worth of goods. Field Crops of Canada.

The total field crops of Canada will this year reach nearly 1,250,000 bushels, while the products of hay and corn will exceed 25,000,000 tons as compared with over 1,000,000,000 bushels of grain and 20,000,000 tons of hay and corn in 1919, according to official figures. It is estimated that the price of 1920 wheat will average $2 per bushel. The field crops of Canada represent about $170 per head of the population, as compared with $110 per head in the United States.

Largest Room Without Pillars.

The largest room without columns is said to be in a solid concrete building of the mosque in Lucknow, India. It is 162 feet long, 54 feet wide and 53 feet high. The timber mold was left a year for the concrete to set, and the building, 225 years old, is still unimpaired.

Basket Social a Great Success

"A complete success from every standpoint" was the verdict passed on the Basket Social, held at Elba Schoolhouse on Friday night, last. The place was packed to overflowing, there was a fine, united, community spirit; the program was thoroughly enjoyed, and the financial receipts were amazingly good. Mr. Bills was selected as Chairman and made a good one. The children led off with "O Canada". Mr. Scholfield was in fine form giving some side-splitting songs "When Father Papared the Parlor" or (How everybody got pasted up). "Have a Little Piece of My Wife's Cake", (warranted to do anything from splitting rocks to defending the country from invasion).

Rev. W. L. Bradley of Carstairs, made a hit with James Whitcomb Riley's "Bear Story" (a small boy's version), and the thrilling tale of "The Building of the Church at Keystone Bar". The schoolteacher Miss Ruddy, had well-trained the pupils in a Dialogue "How Bridget Entertained Callers", Audrey Brown took the leading part "Bridget" exceptionally well, and the rest did very creditably. The Dialogue was one of the best numbers on the program. Messrs Waldo and Swenerton sang "Annie Laurie" and rousing applause called them back for "Sweet and Low". Mr. Waldo sang "Shipmates of Mine," "Off to Philadelphia" and "Until" all of which were well received. Mr. Swenerton sang "When the Ebb Tide Flows". The auctioneering of the Baskets was the most exciting event of the evening. Mr. George Huser was called for as Auctioneer and Mr. Scholfield as Clerk. Mr. Huser soon showed his ability as an Auctioneer of the first rank, with much skill, energy and tact he rallied the support of the men who responded readily, evidently in sympathy with the undertaking. The first basket was sold to Mr. Percival manager of the Imperial Bank, there being a considerable number of enthusiastic folk present from Crossfield. One basket followed another until a lull seemed to suggest something was going to happen. It did, a basket started at ten dollars and went soaring until it reached the proud figure of thirty dollars when it was knocked down to Mr. Earl Conrad. The total receipts of the sale reached the handsome sum of one hundred and fifty five dollars and fifty cents for the support of the Union Church's work at Elba. Three hearty cheers were given for Mr. Huser as Auctioneer. Supper was then enjoyed. After which an attractive and interesting set of slides "Scotland in Song and Story" Secured from the University, was shown by the Magic Lantern under the direction of Mr. Swenerton and Mr. Belslaw. The people joined in singing "Loch Lomond" and "Mother Macree" after which the happy evening was brought to a close with the National Anthem.

A PIMPLE REMOVER THAT NEVER FAILS

Bad blood is always responsible for pimples, blackheads and humours. Pimples, eczema and boils are the common result.

I contend that to cure these ills, the liver, kidneys and bowels must receive attention.

My remedy, known as Dr. Hamilton's Pills of Mandrake and Butter-nut, invariably reaches the trouble.

For putting life into sleepy organs, for forcing out every kind of waste and foreign matter, for making health-sustaining blood, where can you find such efficiency as in Dr. Hamilton's Pills?

In a thousand cases I have demonstrated that Dr. Hamilton's Pills cure facial blemishes and skin diseases.

I look upon these pills as the best blood purifier and system builder of the age, and guarantee they will cure every complaint having its origin in a weak or debilitated blood supply.

If Dr. Hamilton's Pills will not cure that tired, rundown condition, if they will not change lack of force into energy and vim, then nothing will.

By creating an abundant supply of rich, nourishing blood they maintain that standard of health so much desired by those participating in the strenuous life we live today.

Get Dr. Hamilton's Pills and prove their merit today, 25c per box.

"They want to take this away from us," he mused, "and—all this. And the d—villains want to steal her away from all this. Well, let them try."

He turned, lifting his head to catch the low night-calls that floated from the far-away corridors of the deep wood. The forest was creating its nocturnal song—a hushed chant, interspersed with the notes of the wild things that roamed and fed and voiced their gladness after the manner of their kind. The shrill bark of a fox sounded from neither swales, and away beyond a lone wail sadly like a lost child. A little way into the thicket a brood of partridges huddled, peeping with plaintive voices.

"I guess they can't understand very well what all this means to us."

Paisley turned and strode on through the scanty wood-fringe along the Eau Claire until he came to an open spot of nearly two acres. A dim light twinkled from the window of a log-house, and a couple of dogs came forward with fierce yappings which changed to whines of welcome as they recognized the visitor. The door of the house flew open, and a woman, whose frame filled the doorway completely, sent a scolding command out to the dogs.

"David and Goliath," she commanded, "come in here 'fonce er I'll break your no-account backs with this poker."

"Night, Mrs. DeClute," called Paisley. "And in?"

"Anders" rasped the woman, "he you hum? 'Cause if you be, Bill Paisley wants to know it."

The huge form was nudged aside and DeClute's grinning face peered out into the night.

"Come right on in, Bill," invited the lord and master. An ironwood pole leaned against the house, and on it hung a splendid specimen of buck newly killed. On the floor of the house lay a smaller deer already skinned, and now being dissected by the trapper. Three children of various sizes sat about the carcass, each munching a piece of cornmeal from chubby fist.

"How'd the babes, marm?" asked Paisley, carefully stepping through and over the wide-eyed little DeClute and sitting down on a stool near the fireplace, and now being dissected by the trapper. Three children of various sizes sat about the carcass, each munching a piece of cornmeal from chubby fist.

"I hit another," cried Anders, "bigger'n the one outside. Shot about an inch too high, though. But I trailed him down an' I'll get him in th' mornin'." Might have killed a deer, too. Had a good chance, but I didn't take it."

"Zacheus has got a teach of 'p'm-iv," said the woman. "I'm treatin' it with sassafras 'ile an' potash. How've you been yourself, Bill?"

"Feedin' and sleepin' like a babe, thanks," replied Paisley. "What I dropped, I'm tryin' to find out just what you folks think of the way them town-fellers are actin'. Did they make it make you any offer for your timber?"

"Wall, yes, they did," answered Anders slowly. "Offered me three hundred dollars for the big stuff on my place only a day or two ago. Said that you and McTavish and Peeler and most of the others had taken an offer they made you for yours, and I said 't' feller, 'If th' 'r-chaps is it that g'uss I'll see it that way, too.' I'm to my deed 't' Bridgerton when I tote there furs over next Saturday, an' they're goin' to give me another deed and the money."

"Who did you see?" asked Paisley. "That stockbreeder, Smyth. He says, says he, 'the money'll be ready for you when you come, an' says he, 'Don't tell any o' your neechers, 'cause we're payin' you more'n we are them, an' they won't like it.'"

"I don't take it that way they have of wantin' Anders 't' keep dark," said the woman. "I ain't takin' kind like lettin' her canter go anyway. We don't really need that money. Anders he makes enough outin' trappin' and shootin' 'er wants, and if they come in here what are they goin' to do 'er property? That's what I want to know."

Paisley bit off a piece of tobacco and shrugged his shoulders.

"Anders," he asked, watching the trapper roll up the green hide, "how much did you make in furs and deer meat last fall and winter?"

"He made four hundred and three dollars," answered the wife proudly. "Well, then, let me tell you something." Paisley asked the stalk of his rifle impressively with his knuckles. "Just as soon as you take Smyth's money your trappin' days and all other days are over here, for all time. They'll have you just where they've been tryin' to get the rest of us. Once they get hold of your deed you can whistle. This land is worth thousands more'n they offer you, and they know it. What has Hallibur's mill done for the malsh-trappin'? I guess you know. They'll drive the furs off and they'll drive you'n me off, and they want to do just that, too."

DeClute arose from the floor.

"If I like that," she commented, "but his wife broke in."

"If you thort Just as if you didn't think, you'd be shakin' Didn't I tell you that I suspicioned them fellers, and don't Bill Paisley here know? Don't he allars know. Short right up. Anders, an' you, you 'at think. You had no right to act without secin' Bill here an' Big Mac, anyways."

"But I wasn't goin' to Rachel," drawled DeClute. "I war goin' over to Big Mac's this very night, lookin' on Bill on the way over. Don't you get too danged crusty, wife."

The ponderous woman waved a hand toward the progeny on the floor.

"You, David an' Moses an' Zacheus," she commanded, scramble out o' th' road instantly, I'm wantin' to get over 't' cupboard."

There was a hurried scramble out of the way, and the mother rolled across the room and secured a paper from an inner recess of the home-built cupboard.

"Bill Paisley," she said, passing the paper over to the visitor, "you be goin' to keep this here deed for an Anders—ain't I right, Anders?" she nodded, the corner of her mouth drawn down warningly.

"If you say so, ma-in course," consented Anders.

"Good idea," grinned Paisley, folding the paper and placing it in his pocket. "Now, Anders, after you've finished cuttin' up that carcass, suppose you come along with me and I'll we'll look in on the rest of the Bush-shackers and see if we can't get their deeds, too."

DeClute glanced at his spouse. She nodded, and with much alacrity the little man arose.

"Don't know as I'll be much of a help to you, Bill," he laughed, "but I'll go along anyways."

It was midnight when Paisley opened the door of the McTavish home and with a reluctant look surveyed the bundle of deeds above his head. The

First, by the bright copper color of the tea when steeped.

Second, by the exquisite aroma.

Third, by the delightful, refreshing flavor.

Fourth, by the satisfying richness.

candle was burning dimly; the fire in the wide fireplace was almost dead. Boy sat before it alone, looking thoughtfully into the depths of the crossed over to him and placed the deeds, he chuckled, "and to get the deeds I guess they'll have to get us, eh?"

Boy caught his friend's hand and pressed it. He tried to speak, and, noting his feelings, Paisley drew forth his pipe and filled it as he gave, in an undertone, an account of his great night's work.

"I guess all the Bush-shackers'll have reason to thank you, Bill," said Boy. "I ain't sure that they all feel like I do about holdin' this, 'er swept his arm about him and a glow came into his eyes. I know it's foolish, but that saw gets buzzin' in my dreams and I'm fightin' 'em all night for this, Bill, this woods and all it holds. I was thinkin' that I'd come over and see you, when you stepped in. Bill, we don't ever say much, ya Bush-shackers; but tonight I couldn't help but be glad me and you have always been what we have to each other. Some things come over me lately that grip tight hold of me and hold me without hurtin', and I need to like the feelin', too. It's like frost that kills without hurtin'. If I wasn't strong I'd think I was gettin' sick."

There came from the inner room a voice mumble in troubled sleep. Boy lifted his head and smiled.

"It was your name she called, Boy," whispered Paisley wonderingly.

"Ma says he often calls out that way," said Boy. "Sometimes it's my name and sometimes it's dad's. Gloss dreams a lot, I guess."

Paisley noted the smile that drifted across his friend's face, and he nodded his head up and down slowly.

"Guess I'll be hittin' the back trail," he said rising, "and you best get to bed, Boy. I'll come over to-morrow as we arranged and help you set your trap in the run. It's goin' to freeze right soon, and trappin' is on from now. DeClute got a couple of deer this afternoon, so we'll just take 'em whack at 'em ourselves toward night to-morrow."

"You'll better stay and sleep with me, Bill," said Boy. "Somehow I'd like to have you, and we could make an early start in the mornin'."

"Oh, Bill, no!" It along back, I guess," laughed Paisley.

He was wondering whether he ought to tell Boy what he had learned concerning Watson and Simpson, when he glanced at Boy and his lips closed tight.

"He'd kill 'em both," he thought. "I'll watch them fellers myself."

With his hand on the latch of the door he glanced back. Boy was seated before the dead fire, his chin on his hand and the handle of deeds pressed against his cheek. Paisley feared his rifle against the wall and unstrap-ped his powder-horn. Then he came back and put his hands on Boy's shoulders.

"I'd best stay, I guess," he grinned, "and show you how a real Bush-shacker should sleep. It strikes me, Boy, that you're lookin' some lone-some and need company. Glad Anders DeClute's goin' to have a loggin'-bee. I'll stir us all up."

Former Kaiser Writing a Book.

The former Kaiser, in his Holland retreat, is writing a "political testament," the central idea of which is a justification of his course as ruler of Germany in the eyes of the world.

The "testament" is not to be published until after his death. Professor Theodore Schmidtman, the aged historian and personal friend of the former Kaiser, is assisting him in the assembling of data, and is also aiding in the editing. The testament seeks to justify all of Wilhelm's personal and political acts.

Fatal Neglect.

A dog stolen in New York had three gold teeth, wore a belt that held three gold watches and a collar studded with 100 brilliant stones.

The loss of the dog is attributed directly to false economy on the part of the owner in not having supplied it with a gold-headed cane with which to protect itself.

Rheumatic Pains

Are relieved in a few days by taking 30 drops of Mother Seigel's Syrup after meals and on retiring. It dissolves the lime and acid accumulation in the muscles and joints so these deposits can be expelled, thus relieving pain and soreness. Last Brigade from Swan River to York Factory

By O. GE-MAS-ES (Little Clerk).

(Copyrighted)

To Mrs. A. M.

A Foreword: It is a hard matter for an old Fur Trader to take a pen and try to show the modern reader what the old days were like. But when one is asked by a most charming and talented lady, and when she becomes persistent, why then nothing remains but to comply with her request.

In the spring of 1874 being at that time an apprentice clerk in the honorable Hudson's Bay Co.'s service, and enjoying in a salary of £30 a year, with the usual clerk's allowance (yearly) of 200 lb. flour, 200 lb. sugar, 20 lb. tea, 10 lb. of rice and 10 lb. of chocolate, with two gallons of wine and two of spirits. I received orders from the Chief Factor, at Fort Ellice, to take charge of Shoal River House, which post was situated about sixteen miles from the mouth of Swan River, on the north side of Shoal Lake. Reaching there with two dog trains in the latter part of March and after complying with all formalities incidental to taking over a post, I settled down to my first independent charge with feelings of great pride and no small sense of responsibility.

Shoal River House was charmingly situated on a sandy bar immediately fronting the lake, while to the west and south showed up the grim ranges of the Porcupine Mountains, densely covered with spruce. The Fort itself was enclosed with a stout wall of hewn timber. Heavy gates opened directly in front of the Master's house, and on each side of the enclosure were the usual store houses and furs' quarters.

Trading furs kept me busily employed until the opening of the lakes and rivers, when official orders reached me to engage as many boatmen as possible to make the trip to York Factory, my post to be the starting point of the Brigade. Finally, having secured every able-bodied man within a radius of 100 miles, the post began to assume appearance of a little town; long rows of Indian Tepees were erected along the ridge east of the Fort, dancing, gambling and love-making were the order of the day. Time was short and who could tell how many would return after their trip to the sea. My time was fully occupied, every man who signed a contract for the voyage, was entitled to draw half his wages in advance, and there being no cash in circulation, this was paid out of the store goods. Finally the head guide, old Lion-like McNab, came in from Fort Pelly with more men and the last of the boats and assumed absolute charge of the Brigade. 'Voe be! the only white who disputed his authority. Down he went with the first thing that came to hand. Now followed several days hard work, seeing that every boat would have its full complement of provisions, coverings, etc. Then carefully assorting the crews, for he it known to the uninitiated that every York boat is manned by eight men and a steersman. The heavy oars used are a lead for a man, so to get better mastery of the stroke the whole crew rise and fall when rowing. The steersman standing on a platform in the stern, directs and controls every motion of the boat with a huge sweep; this being replaced by a rudder when sailing, a single mast and large square sail being used when the wind is favorable.

Guide McNab fixes the time of starting for the next day and confusion increases. The shop which stood open from early morning till late at night swarmed with men, women, children and dogs, for with every man engaged came a whole tribe of hangers-on, all expecting a little of his bounty. At last the time for departure came. A few steady old hands had pulled the boats up to the beach and ladings consisted of furs, goose quills and castor for shipment to Britain; pemmican and dressed meat for posts en route to the Bay, provisions for the trip. But, alas, over twenty men were missing. Then McNab, arming himself with a stout rifle, requested me to join in the hunt, and one by one we discovered the deserters, some in Tepees under piles of bedding, often sheltered by dark damask skirts, others in the woods. Out they were pulled, McNab's voice raging out in trumpet tones, a strange mixture of English, French and Indian oaths, predominating. Some were dragged, some carried to the boats and all were pitched in with small ceremony. At last everything was ready, and though much beyond the time fixed for starting, off we pulled with the cheers of the men and shrill wails of farewell from Indian women and children, the eight boats passed out of sight round the point.

My orders were to accompany the Brigade until relieved, so leaving a Trusty man in temporary charge of the fort, taking another and light Kirk canoe to assist my return, I encased myself in the stern sheets of the guide's boat. Nine miles down the Shoal River brought us to Lake Winnipegosis. It was beautifully calm, the different boats voyaging with one another for leadership. Camp was ordered at Graves Point, a watch set to prevent desertions, eight huge fires were built for each crew and a smaller one for myself and guide. Each man was given his rations by the boatman of the boat, whose duty it was to issue rations of pemmican and flour. In half an hour from landing, a full supply of bread was being rapidly baked. "Beaver Tail Bread." "Would you like to know how it is made? Well, a stiff dough is rapidly mixed, generally on an empty sack, no shortening added, and when it attains the right consistency, lumps averaging half a pound, are handed to each man, who has already armed himself with a slender stick and half a dozen wood skewers. Pulling the dough over one end, flattening it out at the base and gradually bringing it to a point at the top, this all held firm by skewers across, the whole bearing resemblance to a beaver tail; one end is pushed into the ground before the fire and a few turns thoroughly cook it, and when eaten hot, it is by no means to be despised. Others of the men were busy cooking pemmican in huge open kettles, some munching it raw. Tasting, songs and stories made the camp an animated scene. The gay copote of the French half-breed, with small hat set jauntily on the side of the head, surrounded by two black ostrich feathers, beads and silk wigs, made them the most conspicuous figures of the crowd. Gay songs followed supper in the rude patois of the Metis, all hands joining in the chorus, while some Indians looked on with sphinx-like faces, and as last bed, on most fragrant spruce brush. Hardly had I closed my eyes, when McNab's voice was heard in stentorian tones, "Leve, Leve, Leve, Le, petite nujons, Leve," and beating time with a tillet on the gunwale of a boat leading. A traverse of eighty miles passed already. Even so, for faint streaks of daylight showed in the east, and my watch said half past two. All hands tumbled in the boats, and two hours good pulling was done before breakfast. Thence on through the narrow and tortuous Waterhen River into Lake Manitoba. Glory, a fair wind. The oars were all shipped, masts stepped, eight mighty sails hoisted and out sailed the Brigade in the lake, our boat leading. A traverse of eighty miles lay before us and after carefully noting the weather, McNab boldly stood out to sea, followed by the other boats, for it is an unwritten law, that where the guide's boat leads the other must follow. By the time we were half way across, the wind freshened to a gale and several of the crew were lying sea sick in the bottom of the boat. It was a delightful experience to me having been used to sailing from my youth up.

Towards evening, we made the mouth of the Fairford River and a few minutes pulling brought us up to the post, where, alas, a senior officer was waiting to take charge of the outfit. I was busily engaged that evening in giving over the various accounts. An early start was made next morning, and away went the Brigade with many kind exclamations of regret at parting with their little coterie of Ojibwas, to give the Indian title.

Then, with my man and canoe warily coasting the shore of lakes and rivers, we retraced our way to Shoal River House. And so four months of the summer passed until one day a youngster, a breasted man, with excited merriment, rushed into the fort, calling "Chemau, Chemau," and so it was.

Faint and Dizzy Spells. Weakness and Shortness of Breath.

You can generally tell when the heart is affected by the faint and dizzy spells, the shortness of breath, palpitation, throbbing, irregular beating, smothering sensations, weak, sinking, all-gone feeling, choking sensation, etc.

Many men and women become rundown and worn out when otherwise they could be strong and healthy if they would only pay some attention to the first sign of heart weakness.

No remedy will do so much to make the heart regain strength and vigor, regulate its beat and restore it to a healthy and normal condition as Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills.

Mrs. A. S. Drake, Paris, Ont., writes: "I have used on towards the second box of Milburn's Heart and Nerve Pills and find they have done me good. I had those fainting, dizzy spells, once in a while, and also weakness and shortness of breath, and would become so choked up at times I could hardly stand without sitting up in bed. When walking too fast I would have to stop and try to catch my breath. I feel a lot better since I have used your pills and know that they have helped me wonderfully as I have improved very much."

The Need For Canadianizing the Foreign Element

Question of Teacher Shortage Has An Important Bearing on the Problem.

Ottawa.—During the conference on technical education the important question of teacher shortage and its influence on the Canadianizing of non-English speaking settlements was discussed.

The position in the western provinces was particularly in view. Hon. G. P. Smith, minister of education for Alberta, described the problem of teacher shortage as being at the root of all difficulties in Canadianizing the non-English speaking immigrant. Salaries had been increased and conditions had been improved but enrollment at teachers' training schools was lower than ever.

The conference unanimously passed a resolution strongly expressing the opinion that the federal government should, without delay provide financial assistance to the provinces so that an adequate supply of specially selected teachers may be trained for this work (in non-English speaking settlements) and in rural districts, provided with permanent and attractive homes.

for afar off could be heard the ringing of the mighty oars and at last, one by one the boats swept round the point, weather beaten and worn in appearance, but the veteran crews, pulling like lions. For was not this the home of many of them? After many handshakes and congratulations, my winter outfit was put ashore. Some sorrowful faces are seen, two men missing, one lost in a rapid, the body never found; another carrying his two pieces over a rocky portage slipped and falling, crushed his chest; a ruid' cross now marks the spot.

Leaving two empty boats with me, the remainder of the Brigade pulled out that evening carrying the precious outfit for Fort Pelly, Ellis, Qu'Appelle and many a faroff outpost.

This was the last time goods were brought to the Swan River district via Hudson's Bay and over many portages to their final destination. But history repeats itself. The route which to our forefathers was the chief means of access to the plains and forests of the North-West, has fallen into abeyance with the advent of the transcontinental railroads, now again, is re-asserting itself, and in the near future will again become a mighty factor in the transportation problems of Western Canada.

Here you can forget the rigors of the winter in the north, breathe the soft air and the fragrance of the hot and cedar and into your system. Refresh yourself with views of snow-capped mountains. Spend the winter at Victoria and look around with that vision before you that you have sometimes had in semi-retirement in a delightful climate while on a few acres of rock land in Victoria's surrounding districts you can assure yourself of a comfortable home.

Western Coalfields Will Play Big Part in Our National Development

"Canada has sufficient bituminous coal within her borders to supply not only her present population but also that of the future," stated F. W. Gray, editor of the Canadian Mining Journal, at the second annual western convention of the "Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy" held in Winnipeg recently.

Mr. Gray spoke on the part the coalfields of the west in Canada will play in Canadian national development. He said that unfortunately a gap of 2,000 miles intervened between the eastern coalfields and the beginning of the Saskatchewan lignites along the international border.

This gap could be bridged, the speaker maintained, but two things were required to achieve this end. First an extension of the great lakes waterways that would enable Nova Scotia coal to enter Lake Ontario by water carriage without breaking bulk, and second, the adoption by the railways of a comprehensive program for the annual increasing transport of coal from western coalfields, as a permanent feature of traffic.

The coal deposits of the west were so large and the world need for coal so pressing, said the speaker, that it might well turn out that an export trade in coal would precede the development of the western coalfields for the purpose of providing fuel for local manufacturing industries. Because it had hitherto been unusual the possibility of rail-hauling western coal for export shipment at Vancouver and at Prince Rupert, was not thereby lessened. The opportunity to enter British markets was open to any coalfield in North America, that could get its coal to tidewater with its commercial limits cost of rail haul.

The Secrets Of The Great

Chas. M. Schwab Defines the Rules For Success.

There is a way to the top, so we are told. Charles M. Schwab, the American steel magnate, has defined the secrets of success as follows:

"First—Unimpeachable integrity. This is the very foundation. With this as a starting point the rest will be relatively easy.

"Second—Loyalty. As a rule I find that the university men are loyal. Be loyal to the people with whom you are associated. Give credit always where credit is due, and remember always that it will attract credit to you to give credit to someone else. Make your employer believe that you are with him always, that you are proud to be with his department in his company.

"Third—A liberal education in the finer things of life, of art, literature, will contribute toward a success in life. Man needs imagination, and these are the sources for it.

"Fourth—Make friends. Enemies don't pay. You will be surprised at the pleasantness that will surround you when you have made friends instead of enemies. Whatever your misfortunes in life, boys, just laugh. "Fifth—Concentrate. Learn to concentrate and think upon the problem in your mind until you have reached a conclusion. Don't be afraid of mistakes. Don't blame a man if he makes them; but it is the fool that makes the same one twice.

"Sixth—Go at your work. You may not find yourself the first year. Don't hesitate to change from disasteful work, but don't change because difficulties come up or trouble arises. Give the best that is in you. Let nothing stand in the way of your going on."

Great Future for Alberta Oil Fields

Kansas Millionaire Willing to Put Money Into Company.

Calgary—That Alberta will prove to be a greater oil producing field than Kansas is, or ever will be, was the emphatic opinion expressed at a dinner in the Palliser Hotel by S. W. Forrester, millionaire oil producer of Wichita, Kansas. Mr. Forrester made an offer to supply $100,000 of his own money to any company of Calgary people formed for the purpose of sinking one or two wells in any promising field in this province. This offer was made, he said, because he had faith in Alberta as an oil producing country.

Establish Game Sanctuaries

Will Investigate Breeding Places of The Wild Fowl.

The Federal Government has sent Hayes Lloyd, of Ottawa, ornithologist for the Dominion Parks Branch, to Manitoba to investigate certain wild fowl breeding areas which the authorities have in view.

Mr. Lloyd states that the Provincial Government has already a number of sanctuaries established but, for the preservation of the wild fowl and birds, it was necessary for the Federal Government to establish additional areas. "With the country becoming settled, breeding grounds once suitable for the birds had become farm lands. It was the intention of the Government to secure a number of areas before they also become units of the industry of the province."

Canadian Merchant Marine.

By the end of this year the Canadian Government Merchant Marine will have twelve steamers operating out of Vancouver, British Columbia. Five to Australia, four to the Orient and three to India. The first sailing of the boats to India will be in November, a monthly service to be maintained.

French Government Order Ships.

Orders have been placed with the Prince Rupert Drydock and Engineering Company for five steel oil tank steamers of about 6,500 tons each for the French Government. There are at present eight ships of 5,000 tons each under construction in British Columbia yards.

The Golden Rule Is The High Ideal of The Community Club

To develop in the members of the community in the spirit of the golden rule is the high ideal of the community club movement in Canada. Excluding anything suggestive of sectionalism or sectarianism, this organization, though yet in the first stages of growth, has been of inestimable benefit to the citizens of every community in which a branch has been established, especially in rural districts. Through the inoculation of its aims and ideals a spirit of co-operation has been formed among the many and varied institutions of country districts which has resulted in the preservation of the community centre, the sharing of community tasks, and the betterment of community conditions.

The inception of the Community Club idea in Manitoba was spontaneous and there are already existent in the province thirty-four organizations in a flourishing condition. The work of the clubs has been of especial benefit in the newly settled rural districts, where it has done a great deal to offset the lack of social intercourse, one of the first hardships in any pioneering districts.

But its work in the older settled sections is immense and of wide scope. To help improve living conditions, to make life more wholesome, more attractive and more complete—this has been, and is, the chief aim of the community clubs in the farming districts. The clubs have been instrumental in providing lectures from universities and in seeing that there were substantial audiences present to hear them; agricultural catenagaus have been staged in a number of places; debates on problems of public interest have been held. Valuable work has been done, among the younger generation—Boy Scout troops organized, classes of various kinds have been arranged, debates staged, and all kinds of team sports prepared and carried out. Working in co-operation with the Public Health Board, questions on matters of health and hygiene have had the attention of the clubs, discussion aroused, lectures arranged and active work done in the dissemination of educational propaganda.

Gas from Wheat Straw

Experiments Made at Kansas Promise Wonderful Development.

The Canadian prairie may provide motor fuel for the whole of Canada with a large amount left over for export, and the farmers of the prairie provinces may find a profitable market for a product of the soil which is now virtually wasted if a system for converting wheat straw into motor fuel proves as profitable as experiments now being conducted seem to promise.

The new motor fuel is being manufactured from straw for experimental purposes in Kansas, and word which has just been received from J. C. Mohler, secretary of the Kansas Board of Agriculture, that good progress is being made.

Experiments made by the U.S. Department of Agricultural show, Mr. Mohler says, that a combustible gas can be obtained from the destructive distillation of wheat straw. This new product has been used for operating an automobile for illuminating purposes and for cooking, and tests are in progress to determine its exact value and cost of production.

"If these experiments turn out satisfactorily," said Mr. Mohler, "it may not be many years before our farmers will throw the straw from their threshing machine into a still from which he can draw all the fuel he will require to operate his farm machinery."

"Some geologists have predicted a serious shortage of gasoline in the next few years because of the increasing demand for motor vehicles and machinery. This new gas may solve the problem of how power-farming and transportation are to go on if the shortage becomes a reality. Whether or not this new product will be commercially valuable depends, of course, on whether the cost of production can be made low enough. The value of the product at present gasoline prices would be about $12 an acre."

Laugh and Make Good

Girl Capitalized Fault For Which She Was Discharged.

The next time I catch you laughing you can hunt for another place! That is what the proprietor of a store in Iowa City, Iowa, told one of his clerks not long ago. When he heard her laughing during business hours the next day he proceeded to make good his threat. Whereupon the clerk in question, proceeded to capitalize the "laugh" for which she had been fired. She took hold of a down at the heel, out at the elbow, drug store in Onawa, Iowa, and—well, there's no doubt that this pharmacy is the most flourishing place of its kind in Onawa. The appearance of the store indicates that and the bank balance at the end of the year proves it. —From the St. Paul Dispatch.

He—I wish I had married a girl who could save money. She—I wish I had married a man who could make it. —Boston Globe.

Grants to Rural Schools

Saskatchewan Official Says Household Science is Receiving Attention.

Air: The first year's operations officials of the Saskatchewan Department of Education are well pleased with the results of the policy of making special grants for household science to rural schools.

During the year 84 schools have taken advantage of the opportunity to earn these grants, it was announced by A. H. Ball, deputy minister of education. The maximum grant is $20 per annum per school, and the total amount paid out is in the neighborhood of $1,400.

The object of these grants is to induce trustees to make provision for supplying hot lunches to children who are unable to get home during the noon hour, and to encourage the teaching of household science.

Mr. Ball said that it looked for a big increase in the number of schools taking advantage of the grant next year.

Politics in the Home

Contentions Over Party Matters Will Not Add to the Peace of Any Family.

A smart paragrapher remarks that it is now in order to amend the marriage ceremony by inserting after the word "obey" a clause reading: "reserving the right to vote in accordance with my political convictions." Has the enfranchisement of women introduced a new element of discord into family life? Let us hope not. There are enough now—in some families—without adding political disputes. It has long been regarded as wise for people of strong religious convictions to marry in their own faith. With the same idea prevail as to political views? Contentious over party matters will not add to the peace of any family, with the newspapers constantly bringing inflammatory matter to the home.—Omaha Bee.

Aerial Mail Service.

A contract has been secured from the United States Government by Edward Hubbard, of Seattle, for an aerial mail route between Seattle and Victoria. Terms of agreement provide for service to start the 15th of October and to continue until June 1st, 1921. Ten trips per month are to be made between the two cities, connections to be made with incoming and outgoing C.P.O.S. liners. A maximum of 600 pounds of letter mail is to be carried and remuneration is set at $200 for each trip. It is stated this will improve mail service between Seattle and the Orient by one business day.

Loggers Big Payroll.

The annual payroll for those engaged in logging in British Columbia is $125,000,000, that of those employed in saw mills $97,500,000; of logging for railroads $17,500,000, and of paper mills $3,000,000.

Seeds Have Temperatures

Science Aids Farmers to Tell Live From Dead Seed.

According to recent tests, fully forty per cent. of the seed sown by farmers and gardeners is useless. One series of eggs carried out over a thousand cornfields, proved that seed was responsible for the harvest yielding a third less than the ground's real capacity. Even a thoroughly experienced man cannot tell live from dead seed just by handling it. Hence science is coming to the farmers' aid. It has been found that each kind of seed, like human beings and animals, has a normal temperature. The farmer proposes to sow, to the laboratory. This is done by distilling water in a thermos flask. At the end of forty-eight hours a certain temperature should be registered in the flask according to the kind of seed. "If the seed is weevil or bacteria-infested, a temperature above the normal will result; if dead or old the low vitality will cause a sub-normal vitality. The same test has also been applied successfully to wheat intended for the flour mills. It is a good safeguard to health, for it detects the presence of bacteria, fungus and insects that would otherwise ultimately be present in the loaf of bread.

The Call of The Deep.

A Norfolk vicar has been accustomed for years to take his choir boys for a trip to Yarmouth. Each year he has longed to display to them the fine parish church, but has been grieved at the diffidence of the boys to hallowed walls; always the first thought was the sea, and only the sea.

This year, however, a change was wrought. As they alighted from the train the boys begged earnestly to be shown the church. The vicar was delighted at this reward of his influence; but as they came near the church the new found zeal was explained. One of the boys said in tones of anticipation: "Father says they've got a stuffed shark there!" —London Daily Chronicle.

Gen. Ludendorff Is a Private.

Gen. Erich Ludendorff, Germany's noted military strategist, and for two years practically the controller of the German war effort, is now a private in the Bavarian Home Guard. Gen. Ludendorff recently moved from Berlin to one of the suburbs of Munich, where he appears to be making a private in the local company of the Home Guard and was accepted. Should disorders break out, the former head of the German army may have to shoulder a rifle and patrol the streets side by side with an ordinary household.

Feeding Drugs to Milk Cows

Air-Slaked Lime Has Slight Influence On Yield of Butter-Fat.

It is occasionally reported that phenomenal record yields have been secured by cows on test by feeding them drugs. The Delaware experiment station has been trying to look into this matter in a scientific way, experimenting with such drugs as saltpeter, gypsum salts, air-slaked lime, Fowler's solution of arsenic, gentian, sodium bicarbonate, ginger and several other drugs. As a result of the experiment it was found that only one of these drugs seemed to have any effect. Air-slaked lime when fed at the rate of one ounce night and morning, seemed to have a slight influence on the yield of butterfat. The experiment is not really conclusive on this point, but in view of the fact that lime is a very important constituent of milk, and that cows generally draw heavily on the lime in their skeletons, while giving milk, it is very possibly good policy to mix lime with the feed of dairy cows. Ohio experiments indicate that perhaps it is good policy to feed bone meal to dairy cows. Bone meal, like lime, is very rich in calcium, which is the one mineral element that seems to be most appreciated by cows giving milk.

Queer New Zealand Flower

Daisy Grows So Large It Looks Like Sheep.

In New Zealand there is a member of the daisy family that grows to such a size that it is often mistaken, even by the shepherds, for a sheep. The vegetable sheep, as it is called, grows in exposed places, and its branches are clothed with small leaves which have the appearance of wool. The shape and size of the plant make its likeness to a sheep complete. Vegetable sheep are found on grass which is suitable for sheep, and they often cause the shepherd a good deal of trouble. Thinking that one or more of his sheep have been left behind, he goes out of his way to investigate, only to find that the supposed sheep is merely a plant.

Wealthy Indians Have Airplanes.

Many of the wealthiest members of the Osage Indian nation attended the famous Osage Stamp Dance at Amite, Okla., via airplane. There is more wealth per capita among these people than any other nation in the world. It is derived from the oil and gas on their lands, which contain some of the richest mineral products in the world.
